ITALY'S MORE DETERMINED ATTITUDE IN WAR PREPARATIONS

Ll. George's "New Deal" Rejected

Mr. James Ramsay MacDonald leaves London for his native Scotland and virtual retirement after resigning as Great Britain's Prime Minister because of failing health.

JUBILEE NAVAL REVIEW TO-DAY AT SPITHEAD

161 VESSELS WILL BE PRESENT

50,000 OFFICERS AND MEN PARTICIPATING

The Jubilee Naval Review at Spithead to-day is to be on a much larger scale than had been anticipated.

Not only are the Home and Mediterranean Fleets to be present in great strength, but the greater part of the Reserve Fleet is to be commissioned for the occasion.

An Admiralty announcement shows that altogether 161 vessels will be present, including:
10 battleships 79 destroyers
2 battle cruisers 22 submarines
2 aircraft-carriers 22 sloops and 18 cruisers minesweepers

No such assembly of Britain's naval strength has been seen in peace time since July, 1914, when the Test Mobilisation was held at Spithead.

KING ARRIVES AT SPITHEAD

Spends Night On Royal Yacht

250,000 EXPECTED TO SEE BRITAIN'S SEA MIGHT

London, To-day.

H.M. the King travelled to the outskirts of Portsmouth yesterday by special train, being accompanied by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York and the Duke of Kent, on his way to attend the Jubilee Review of the Royal Navy off Spithead this afternoon.

His Majesty proceeded through Portsmouth by motor-car, and was enthusiastically cheered by the great crowds lining the route. The King is spending the night on board the Royal Yacht Victoria and Albert.

It is expected that at least 250,000 people will watch the review from the shore and from ships.

Owing to the pressure of Government business, an adjournment of the House of Commons to permit members to attend the Review has not been possible, but a large group of members, including the Prime Minister, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, and the Lord President of the Council, Mr. J. Ramsay MacDonald, will be present. — British Wireless Service.

PLAN NO CURE FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

GOVT. NOW PREPARING REASONED STATEMENT

ELECTION DELAY SUGGESTED

London, To-day.

Parliamentary opinion has veered towards a general election next spring, thanks to the clarification of the atmosphere by the Government's rejection of Mr. Lloyd George's £250,000,000 New Deal proposal last night.

As a reply to Mr. Lloyd George's action in publishing the outline of the scheme yesterday, the Government is preparing a reasoned statement, which it is understood will flatly reject the suggestions like the nationalisation of the coal, cotton, and iron and steel industries, and pensions at 60 (which would cost £100,000,000 a year.)

Mr. Lloyd George will be told that the scheme will not cure unemployment and cannot be effected for two years as he suggests without the abolition of Parliamentary control.

Mr. Lloyd George announces that he will challenge the Government with this scheme at the next election.

Cautious Parliamentarians urge the delay of the elections until spring to enable the newly formed Government to place its case before the country more effectively than has hitherto been possible. — Reuter.

POLITICAL SCRAMBLE FOR POWER

MANOEUVRES BY SOUTH-WEST

MANIFESTO ISSUED BY LOCAL KUOMINTANG

[From Our Own Correspondent]

Canton, To-day.

The Government newspapers here are publishing daily circular messages, issued by public bodies and Kuomintang organs in support of the circular telegram of the Kuomintang South-west Executive Committee of June 22, which asked the Central Authorities to disclose their plan of coping with the Japanese menace, and to suppress the Blue Shirts Organisation.

One of the supporting manifestos is issued by the Hong Kong branch of the Kuomintang headquarters, although that body is established here and not in Hong Kong. This party organ claims to represent certain Chinese interests in the Colony.

WEATHER REPORT

A moderate anticyclone covers the Pacific to the south of Japan and a ridge of moderately high pressure extends from it to south-east China. Depressions are situated over the western part of the Sea of Japan and to the north of Hokkaido. The typhoon is filling up over Tongking, East and south-east winds, moderate, cloudy, showery, was the forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory this morning.

NORTHERN FLOODS

TREMENDOUS DESTRUCTIVE POSSIBILITIES

PENDING BREACH IN MAIN DYKE

Kiangsu Threatened By Yellow River

Nanking, To-day.

A message from Sochow says that the Yellow River is threatening to breach the main dyke at Langfeng, East Honan. In this event the flood water is likely to follow the former bed of the Yellow River into Northern Kiangsu, entailing tremendous loss of life and property.

Precautions are being taken in Northern Kiangsu, where local officials plan to strengthen the dykes along the old river-bed. — Reuter.

320 VILLAGES ARE FLOODED

HUNDREDS DROWNED

Peiping, Later.

A message from Paoching states that the Yellow River has overflowed both banks near Changyuan, the most southern point of Hopei, flooding an area on which 320 villages were situated.

Scores of houses have collapsed and hundreds are believed to have been drowned. Over 120,000 are homeless, and much livestock is reported to have perished in the flood-water, which is about six feet deep.

The Changyuan magistrate describes the terrible suffering, and the Provincial Government is providing funds for emergency relief. — Reuter.

ADAMSON GOLF CUP

A. E. Clark (22-15-57) qualified on Sunday for the Adamson Cup (July) from seven entries at Happy Valley.

The statement of Premier Mussolini that various European Governments are shipping arms and munitions to Abyssinia seems to be borne out by this picture showing Ethiopian warriors carrying boxes of ammunition at Addis Ababa. Here the troops of Emperor Haile Selassie are concentrating for the expected war with Italy's expeditionary force.

TWELVE PEOPLE DROWNED

Motor-Bus Falls Into Canal In Belgium

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Brussels, To-day.

Twelve people were drowned at Turnhout, province of Antwerp, on Sunday as a motor-bus fell into the canal when trying to evade a cyclist. Out of the 14 occupants in the bus, only two escaped, while the others, including the driver, lost their lives. — Trans-Queen Service.

NAVAL PACT WITH GERMANY

Present Programme Questioned

STATED NOT FORFEITEN BY AGREEMENT

London, To-day.

The Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, stated in the House of Commons at question time yesterday that the text of the Anglo-German Naval Agreement had been communicated to the League of Nations and would be registered forthwith.

Asked if information recently published by the German Government regarding ships they had laid down or intended to lay down this year was accepted by the British Government as in accordance with the Anglo-German agreement, Sir Victor Warrender replied for the Admiralty that, as would be seen by reference to the exchange of notes, the programme formed no part of the agreement, but it was in no way contrary to any part of it. — British Wireless Service.

BRITISH LEGION IN GERMANY

Delegates Received By Reichsfuehrer

London, To-day.

The members of the British Legion visiting Germany at the invitation of German ex-service-men's organisations yesterday placed a wreath on the tomb of Germany's Unknown Warrior in Berlin and were received by Herr Hitler, who with Herr Hesse, Deputy leader of the Nazi Party, talked with them for over two hours. — British Wireless Service.

NAVAL OFFICER ROBBED

Lt-Commander A. L. Moorhay, of H.M.S. Tamar, has reported to the police that between 12.10 and 1.45 p.m. yesterday somebody stole from his cabin a gold watch valued at $30 and a fountain pen valued at $15.

Meat Marketing Agreements

London, To-day. — In the House of Commons yesterday, the President of the Board of Trade made a statement on the reciprocal marketing agreements made by Britain.

In the last few days they had secured a voluntary agreement with Australia and New Zealand which would govern the supplies of mutton and lamb to the British market in the end of 1936.

SOCIALIST REPUBLIC IN SZECHUEN

FARMERS OBJECT TO HEAVY PROVINCIAL TAXATION

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day.

A Soviet Socialist Republic has been established in North-western Szechuen about 130 kilometres or about 90 miles north-west of Chengtu, as many farmers have become Reds owing to heavy taxation by the provincial authorities, according to Japanese reports reaching here last night.

The reports added that in spite of Government successes over the Communists, the latter are able to hold out in their own territory. According to the same sources, the Nanking military authorities are taking a serious view of the situation.

The headquarters of the Communists are located at Maohsien in North-western Szechuen, and it is apparently the capital of the Communist regime. One detachment under Forward Hsu is attacking Wuiping in an effort to reach Shensi but is being held back by Nanking divisions under General Wu Chung-nan.

Heavy artillery and aerial bombardments are being directed on the Red position. Thousands of them have been reported killed, yet the Red menace in Szechuen is not a spent force, according to reports received here.

TWO MEN CRUSHED BY LANDSLIDE

One Killed; Other Seriously Hurt

One man was crushed to death and another critically injured when they were pinned beneath several tons of granite and sand in a landslide which occurred at the Government Quarry, Tsai Tse-mui, at 10.40 this morning.

It appears that the men were working at the base of the quarry and a quantity of granite, which had been loosened by the heavy rains of the past few days, became dislodged and came hurtling down upon them.

LAST NIGHT'S STORM

Addition To Water Reserves

Last night's thunderstorm and tropical downpour of rain made another welcome addition to the water stocks of the Colony and mainland. The rain was the heaviest seen here for some time, and continued for some hours from 11 p.m. onwards. There is a distinct lowering of the temperature this morning, the air instead of the usual mugginess general at this time of the year being appreciably cooler and less enervating.

The total rainfall for the 24 hours ended at 10 a.m. to-day was 1.47 inches.

H.M. Submarine Porpoise is due to arrive in the Colony to-day from Welport.

CAMPAIGN IN PRESS

COMPLETE FAITH IN MUSSOLINI

ITALY MASTER OF OWN FUTURE

BRITISH ARMS EXPORTS STOUTLY DENIED

Rome, To-day.

The news of Italy's fresh military measures is published in huge type on the front pages of the papers, which yesterday took an even more determined attitude.

While the Chancelleries of Europe ceaselessly discuss the juridical interpretation and probably the political adjustment of the so-called Abyssinian question, Signor Mussolini acts, says the Lavoro Fascista.

The paper adds that Signor Mussolini, who is a master of political strategy, points out the only road that can be followed to safeguard Italy's rights and make her master of her own future. — Reuter.

NO ARMS EXPORT FROM BRITAIN

A message from London states that no licences for the export of arms to Abyssinia have been received during the last three months, said Lt. Colonel Colville, President of the Board of Trade, replying to Captain Waterhouse (C. S. Leicester) in the House of Commons.

Only two applications have been received, and they are still under consideration as they are out of order. — Reuter.

COUNCIL MEETING LIKELY

London, To-day.

Members questioned the Foreign Secretary in the House of Commons yesterday regarding the meeting of the Council of the League of Nations in connection with the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, and the adjournment of the Conciliation Commission.

Sir Samuel Hoare recalled that the Council had decided in May to meet in London, in default of the agreement between the arbitrators, understanding should not have been reached by July 25 as to the selection of the fifth member of the Commission, unless the four members agreed to extend the period, and the Council had also decided to meet and examine the situation if on August 25 a settlement by means of conciliation and arbitration should not have taken place.

He added: "In view of the above circumstances the early meeting of the Council appears inevitable." — British Wireless Service.

SALVAGE WORK ON "EGYPT"

Remaining Treasure To Be Recovered

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Paris, To-day.

The Italian steamer Artiglio will leave Brindisi, where she had only recently arrived, within the next few days in order to resume her efforts to raise the remainder of the gold treasure from the wreck of the Pandoro and Ugentino, which is still estimated to be worth 900 kilograms of gold, 275 kilograms of silver, and 25,000 unmined ounces. — Trans-Queen Service.

THE NEW WAY OF MANAGING A BRIDE'S TRIN

Trousseau Includes Long Cape Of Taffeta

RUMPLED MATERIAL

A new way of managing the train has been discovered by a bride. She wears a gown of gleaming silver, with a narrow flounce just below the knees. At the back this flounce is knotted over the train, and the weight of the knot and its two long ends keep the train from dragging.

Pink daisies and blue forget-me-nots are massed at the neck of the pale-blue organza brides-maids' gowns. Among her trousseau evening clothes is a long cape of deep rose-coloured ruffled taffeta, a material which looks as if it had been washed and dried but not ironed.

This goes with a navy satin evening gown, hitched up at the back to show a glimpse of a flounce of deep rose, matching the cape.

STAINING THE FLOOR

Mixture Of Boot And Floor Polish

The best method to stain your floor is to melt and mix together a tin of boot polish, either black or brown, as required, and a tin of floor polish twice that size. When cool, rub well into the floor with a nail-brush or blacklead brush, and polish brilliantly with a mop.

BEAUTY ADVICE

A patriotic sports outfit of red, white and blue woollens worn by Ann Dvorak, screen actress. The wool skirt is of a bright shade of blue and is topped with a white Norfolk jacket of white twill, which fastens at the front with red buttons.

CHIFFON ON THE WANE

Plain Materials Preferred

A CHARMING FROCK

A study of these summer fashions shows the reign of the printed chiffon very much on the wane, its place being taken by plain materials in lovely, soft, pastel colourings. The heavy, crinkled or blistered silk crepes (which are really by no means as heavy as they appear) still remain favourites for evening gowns and wraps. One of these is one of the outstanding successes of the season. The frock is of a very "plastery" crepe which looks almost like matisse, in an exquisite shell-pink shade, made with a very full sweeping skirt and a perfectly plain, fitted bodice cut square at the front and back and fastened up the front with a row of round coral buttons. Over this is worn the most entrancing little jacket, with full basque and elbow sleeves, of deep rose-pink taffeta.

TAILORED GOWNS WITH COLLAR AND REVERS

A fashion creator has designed a tailored gown with collar and revers. The bodice buttons down the front like a jacket and a narrow leather belt is worn with it.

Make-Up Can't Change Your Features

EXPERIMENT A NECESSITY

Correct make-up to wear with the most popular summer colours is a question that seems to be bothering a good many beauty-minded women these days.

It's not difficult to decide on the right rouge, lipstick, eye-shadow and powder if you intend to stick to navy blue or black. However, if you have gone in for the subtle tints shades of the new musical comedy colours, you ought to spend hours over a cosmetic counter before you make one single purchase.

Keep in mind, of course, that all make-up is used simply to enhance the natural beauty with which nature endowed you. You shouldn't try to figure out fantastic ways and means to apply rouge and make-up in the hope that you will be able to change features that displease you. You won't be successful anyway. Unless you do your work behind footlights or know full well that all of your dancing for an evening will be done under amber lights, there's no use hoping that rouge will make your chin look smaller or that lipstick applied beyond the natural line of the lips will change the contour of your mouth. The best you can do is to keep smiling and to wear make-up that harmonises with your own colouring and which does not clash with the clothes you wear.

When you start out to buy cosmetics to go with a special outfit, wear that outfit. Ask the saleswoman to let you try various tones to see which are most becoming. It's impossible to make flat rules about what rouge to wear with chartreuse—which lipstick looks well with orange. A great deal depends on your own skin tones. You simply have to experiment.

CLOTHES FOR SPORTS

Sun Bathing Dresses In Striped Material

BEACH FASHIONS

Tennis dresses of cotton pique, washing silks, linen, and shantung have figured saashes and belts. Brown is the colour for linen beach shorts and tennis shorts; with them go clean white or ivory white sleeveless vests; the boleros or jackets may be brown or white and the belts are usually of brown leather. With the bodiceless bodice to a beach dress a cape is as right as a jacket or coat. Capes of hand-knitted white yarn go well with strawberry red, brown, black, and dark blue linen. Indian draped dresses are also made for the beach, where any sort of hood is newer than a hat. In striped linens, silks and cottons there are sun-bathing dresses with the hood-drapery. The sun bonnet is put with cotton frocks and jacket. Thin summer materials are accented pinned in capes and flounces.

CLOTHES FOR THE CRUISE

Concentrate On Sports And Evening Outfits

CHOOSE BRIGHT COLOURS

Planning your cruising outfit is really quite a simple matter when one realizes that practically nothing but sports clothes and evening clothes are needed. Go over the various things one must pack one by one.

One warm top-coat is essential—something of a sports variety in tweed or wool. Then you'll want very warm evening coat or wrap, because even in the tropics it can be very chilly on deck at night. Also, take a rain coat, but the chances are you'll never wear it.

Suits And Jumpers
A linen suit is an ideal garment for short excursions on a southern cruise and a lightweight tweed or knitted wool suit for going ashore at Northern resorts. With these you can wear cool linen, cotton or silk jumpers or blouses, or woollen equivalents, according to climate. Choose bright rather than pastel colours to wear at sea. The effect is much better.

If you don't like wearing trousers, you'll need three or four cotton or linen frocks for deck wear (some of them backless). Then take a washing silk frock as an alternative to suits for shore parties, and one afternoon frock, because on some cruises, evening dress is not worn on Sunday nights, or when the ship is in port. Some of the newest unshrinkable and crease-resisting fabrics are a great boon for cruising.

FOR SMALL SLIM WOMEN ONLY

Picture Frocks

Picture frocks in taffetas suit only the small, slim woman. Larger-sized women should never wear such frocks, as they would look immense.

SQUARE SHAPED HAND BAGS

For the daytime your handbag should be square-shaped, in morocco leather, and of gold or silver sequins, or plain-coloured pleated crepe-de-chine, for the evening.

Lawn Bowls

Jones was seldom master of the situation, being unable to find his green or his length. Many of his woods fell away rapidly at the end, and he never seemed to make full allowance for this.

Medina lacked the consistency that was so obvious with his partner, although, generally speaking, he was well up to expectations.

Grimmitt Heavy

Grimmitt's only fault was that he was sometimes on the heavy side, and woods which had the green were often a yard or so through. Yesterday was not his lucky day, for many of his bowls missed taking the shot by a matter of inches.

Most of the heads were very closely fought with neither pair leaving anything to chance. On several occasions, Grimmer had to drive at a very small target and the fact that he was successful so often is a tribute to his skill.

Cavanagh Unlucky

Cavanagh also has quite a bit of driving to do, but he was not as lucky as his play deserved. On the 19th head his opponents were lying the shot and in driving he took out his own wood to give the opposition six. With his next wood, however, he managed to take the shot.

On the last head Jones put the better of the draw and was lying one with Grimmer to play. He managed to make the second game.

enough, so I thought I would try the singles again. "36 Is Too Old For Me" "I know I declined to play Davis Cup singles here in Paris. Anyone inclined to wonder why should realise the difference between the grass and the hard court surface. Grass is nearly as fast as indoor wood; the rallies are shortened and I can stand for me to have singles ambitions."

Despite all this entirely refusal to regard Borotra as a "has been," even in singles. One is glad to see that he is in Roderick Menzel's section of the draw. That means that only one of the two can play F. J. Perry (in the next section), so that the Champion will be relieved of the strain of beating both. Borotra beat Bruce Harris Henkel and then lost to Menzel.

shot, but Cavanagh sent up a wood to block the only hand that remained open, thus making it impossible for Grimmer to secure the necessary three to save the game.

Miss Wilson Abandons Her Golf "Marathon" Attempt

June 20. Delay in the arrival of an aeroplane, owing to bad weather, forced Miss Enid Wilson, the former British woman champion, to abandon her attempt to play 72 holes of golf in four countries in the space of 12 1/2 hours. Miss Wilson set out at 5.40 a.m. to play a round on the Holyhead course, North Wales, with George F. Bullock, the Holyhead professional, as her partner. Matched by about 50 spectators, she completed the round in two hours with a score of 71, and then went to the clubhouse to await the aeroplane which was to convey her to Morecambe for her English round. After waiting for three hours, Miss Wilson was informed by telephone from Liverpool that conditions were too bad to allow the pilot to make a safe landing at the golf course, and the attempt was abandoned. Miss Wilson made arrangements to return by train to London.

CINCINNATI BASEBALL WIN OVER GIANTS

Ott And Lieber Hit Home Runs

BROWNS BEAT SENATORS

New York, To-day. Yesterday's baseball programme was very much curtailed, the feature being the defeat of the Giants in the National League by the Reds.

Melvin Ott struck his 20th four-bagger in the home-run parade for the Giants, while Lieber added his 15th.

The Cardinals, last year's world champions, struck the top of their form against the Braves and won by a 13 to 6 margin. Durocher (2) and Joe Medwick scoring circuit-clouts.

In the only game scheduled for the American League, the Browns nosed out the Senators in a low scoring encounter.

Results, as cabled by Reuter, were:—

LOU BROUILLARD BEATS CORBETT III IN 10-ROUND BOUT

LOSER'S HOPES FOR TITLE DASHED

TERRIFIC FIGHTING

San Francisco, July 4

Lou Brouillard, pounded out a decisive victory over Young Corbett III in 10 bruising rounds here to-night and dashed the latter's hopes of winning the world middleweight crown.

Brouillard, the former welterweight and middleweight champion, gave Corbett, former king of the welter division, a terrific body beating and the Fresno boy was in distress several times in the closing rounds.

Brouillard's Record

Brouillard won the middleweight title from Ben Jely on August 9, 1933, and lost it on the following October 30 to Vince Dundee. He won the welter crown in 1931 from Young Jack Thompson, and lost it the following year to Jackie Fields. Corbett beat Fields here on February 22, 1933, on points to take the welter crown, but lost it the following May 30 when Jimmy McLarnin knocked him out in the first round at Los Angeles. Since then Corbett has been campaigning in the middleweight division—Associated Press.

OXFORD CRICKET BLUES

D. F. Walker, the Oxford University captain, has awarded £100 to T. G. L. Ballance (Uppingham and Brasenose) and R. E. Darwall-Smith (Charterhouse and Brasenose).

SOUTHAMPTON REPORT LOSS

Southampton F. C. lost £749 last season due to the directors' state in their annual report to drop in gate receipts, which were £14,067 for first team matches and £1,300 for reserve games.

ASCOT FOTE RECORD

The totalisator daily double at Ascot yesterday also constituted a record, the taking being £5,494 10s. The previous record was £4,944 10s. The previous record was £4,944 10s. The previous record was £4,944 10s.

FRENCHMEN CELEBRATE NATIONAL DAY

Demonstrations At Lyons

M. HERRIOT CONDEMNS FASCISM

PARIS, To-day. In keeping with their programme, the Radical Socialists of Lyons did not participate in the National Day celebrations on Sunday, but held a demonstration instead where M. Herriot, Mayor of Lyons, spoke.

Although M. Herriot condemned Fascism, whether coming from the left or right, he declared himself unconditionally for peace, and despite the fact that it was M. Herriot who in visiting Soviet Russia laid the foundation of the present Franco-Soviet alliance, his speech was incessantly interrupted by Communists, who howled, whistled and booed without intermission.

M. Herriot declared that whatever happened, he would stand by the Republican form of Government. "Not those who screech the loudest are the best friends of the Republic," said M. Herriot in condemning both civil war and war of the nations.

His supporters cheered themselves hoarse while the Communists showed some resentment by whistling, but the police kept the heads from coming to blows.

RECEPTION IN BERLIN

Berlin, To-day. The French National Day was celebrated by the French colony here at a reception given by the Ambassador, M. Francois Ponce.

In welcoming the guests, the Ambassador said he resented the suggestion that the power and vigour of France were degenerating. The present unrest, said M. Ponce, indicated the throes of a re-birth similar to those which have occurred several times at critical periods in French history. The French people never tolerated for long any violation of their sense of equilibrium, or relaxed from their adherence to the principles of the rights of man.

In the present confusion France would not let its ideals fall. "Our hope that France and Germany will one day arrive at an understanding with each other remains unshaken," he said, "and in the last few weeks signs have not been wanting that a better era in the relations between the two neighbouring peoples is dawning."

FOR PEACE OF EUROPE

Rome, To-day. Franco-Italian friendship rests not on mere words or formulas, but on a clear realisation of facts, said the French Ambassador in Rome, Comte de Chambrun, in addressing the French colony during the celebration of the French National holiday on Sunday.

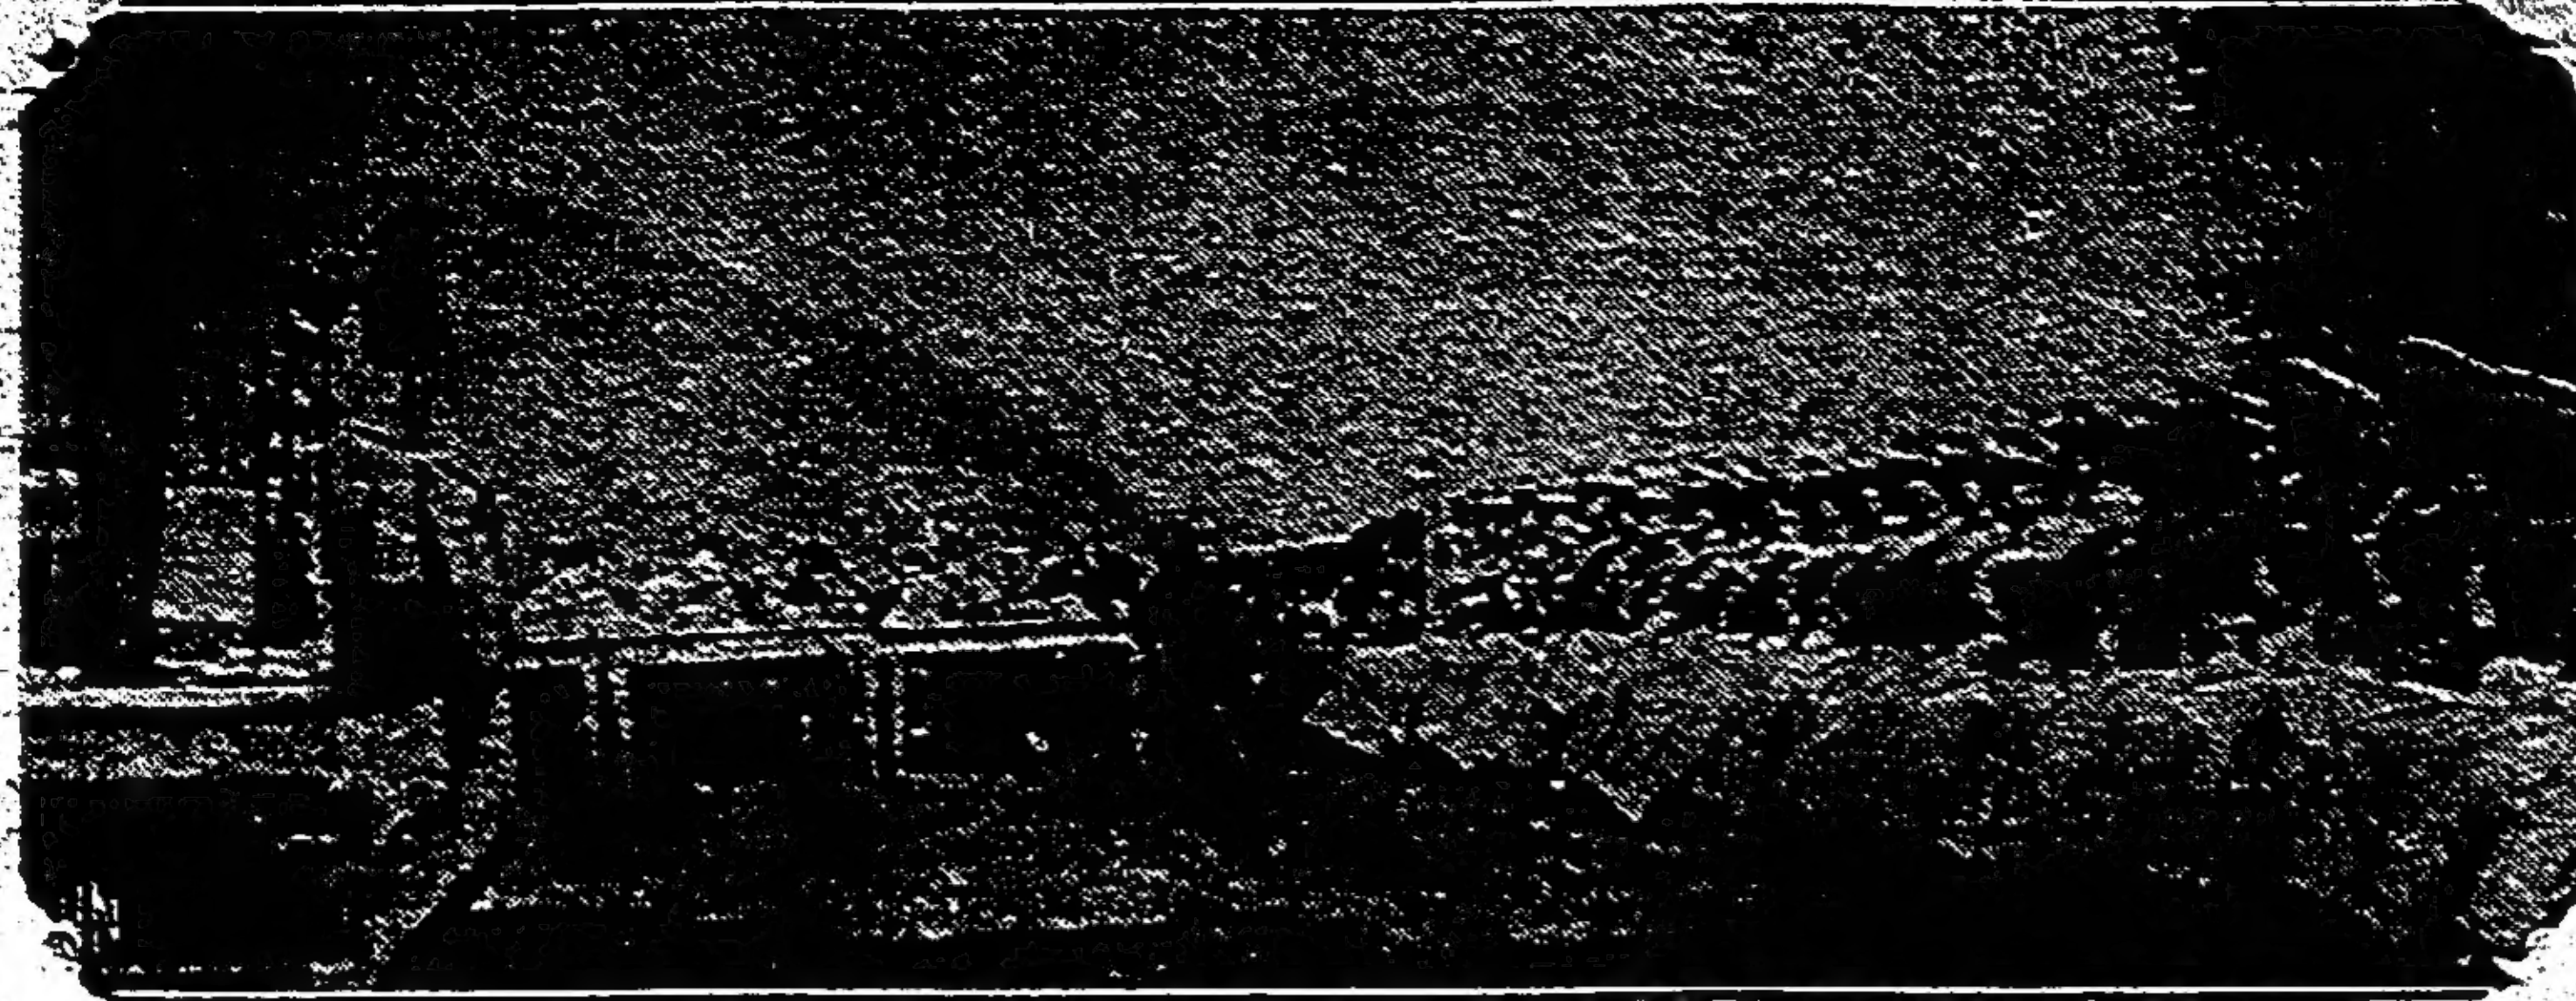

The solidarity of the two countries would prove just as fruitful as did the alliance concluded at a moment of danger years ago, the French envoy declared, in expressing the hope that in the interests of all nations wishing to recover their lost balance in the new order, the new intimacy of the two nations would extend to the net efforts aiming to preserve the peace of Europe—Trans-Ocean Service.

FORGERY OF BUS TICKETS

Another Conviction In Kowloon Case

The case against Fung Hap alias Fung Chun, the fourth defendant in the Kowloon Motor Bus Company ticket forgery case, was concluded at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon, when he was sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. Wynne-Jones. He was convicted on a charge of uttering a forged ticket; two other charges of embezzling and defrauding were dismissed.

Mr. E. S. C. Brooks, of Messrs. Hastings and Company, appeared on behalf of the complainants, the Kowloon Motor Bus Company Ltd., and Mr. J. M. D'Almeida, Solicitor, appeared for the defence.

Addressing the graduating class of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, President Roosevelt is shown telling the newly made officers and spectators that America's modest army is proof of her desire for peace. The President stated that the army on some occasions had been reduced "to a level unjustified by a due regard to our own safety." He then presented commissions to the graduates.

WOMAN SENT DOWN FROM OXFORD

Second Expulsion In Week

UNION SOCIETY PROTEST

Oxford. A second undergraduate member of St. Hilda's College, Oxford, was sent down to-day—Lady Katherine Cairns, the 23-year-old daughter of Earl Cairns, of Farleigh House, Farleigh-Hungerford, Bath.

Lady Katherine, who has been studying modern languages is captain of Oxford University Women's Tennis Club, a woman fencing "Blue," and was the first woman undergraduate to be allowed to use a car while at college.

Previous Case. Learning that Miss Shawcross had been sent down because of paragraphs she was alleged to have contributed to the principal of St. Hilda's, Miss Julia Mann, Lady Katherine told her tutor that she had supplied information to that journal. An interview with Miss Mann followed, and Lady Katherine was told she must leave Oxford. She is at present taking "schools," and is to be allowed to continue these examinations.

"I shall stay with my sister, who lives just outside Oxford, until I have finished the examinations," she said to-day.

Protest Sequel. There was a sequel at the debate of the Oxford Union Society later, when Mr. G. Gladston, of Worcester College, proposed to add to the motion the phrase that the "recent punishment of certain members of a women's college has shown that the exercise of freedom of speech and writing, the common privilege and rights of citizens in later life, is in the older universities liable to suppression."

The addition was not approved, but Mr. Gladston raised the point in debate, denouncing "methods of the concentration camp."

OLD LOCOMOTIVE WITHDRAWN

'Honoured Retirement' For No. 14,010

LAST "SINGLE-WHEELER"

After a career of 49 years, during which she has covered 780,000 miles, the most historic of the L.M.S. Railway's 8,000 locomotives has just finished her working life and is now to be preserved in honoured retirement at the company's works at St. Rollox, Glasgow. This famous engine is No. 14,010, which has the distinction of being not only the last "single-wheeler" locomotive to survive in public passenger service in Great Britain, but also one of the few locomotives surviving of those which took part in the "race to Edinburgh" in 1838.

KILLED BY ENGINE

A LNER fireman, Mr. A. Lumley, aged 24, of Warren street, Islington, who was knocked down on his way to work recently by an engine outside the sheds at King's Cross, has died from his injuries.

ONE-NIGHT REVIVAL

OF PAST ERA

Re-Appearance Of

Famous Dancer

CHARITY BALL SURPRISE

IN PARIS

A white-haired woman, Jane

Avril, only survivor of the famous

"Moulin Rouge Quadrille" of 40 years ago, who has been in retirement for 28 years, received a past era for one night when she appeared in the "Toulouse-Lautrec" Ball in Paris in May.

Jane Avril was, like La Goulue of the same period, admired and feted by kings, ambassadors, poets, and artists. She danced with La Goulue and other artists who were famous at the time at the Moulin Rouge.

Circus Rider

Lane Avril was a friend of

Oscar Wilde. She became a circus rider, and finally appeared at the Moulin Rouge, where, instead of acquiring a familiar nickname as did other dancers of the period, she remained Jane

Avril. She was at the height of her glory until about 1900, when she retired and married a painter. She is now a widow, and lives in Paris.

Last year she consented to dance for a village fete and then declared that her last appearance in public would be at a charity ball in Paris. She kept her word.

DOG DRUGGED BY THIEVES?

Alsation Locked In Back Room

London.

Thieves who broke into a house in East-side-road, Golders

Green, in the absence of the occupier, are believed to have drugged an Alsation dog and locked it in a back room.

The thieves apparently spent some hours in the house, entering every room, and they took jewellery, antique silver and clothing valued at between £400 and £500.

The occupier of the house is

M. A. E. Cox. When a member of the household returned home the dog was found in a back room.

The police believe that the thieves are members of a gang which have made several raids in the district recently.

Celebrations

There are, of course, endless varieties of celebrations, from the annual dinners of cricket and football clubs, to national fetes and religious ceremonies; and we all feel that life would be the poorer if we merely worked and ate and slept day to day without connecting ourselves up with like-minded people and the big events of the past that made our social and political life what they are to us. Is the custom of commemorating dates and seasons good or bad?

It might appear at a first glance that the line to be drawn depends on whether the thing to be celebrated is a uniting or a dividing memory; but human things are not so easily classified by a straight line. The members of a Cricket Club at their annual meeting are no doubt full of a feeling of good fellowship, not disconnected with victories over rival clubs; but it is their own prowess that they think of, without troubling to vaunt their humiliation of the rivals, who are quite probably their very good friends. A political party on the other hand exists to subdue some other political party and cannot triumph without inflicting defeat upon the rivals; a commemoration is an incitement to future action for further struggle. The genuinity or otherwise of the company assembled will depend very much on the question whether the controversy is deep and merely involves a choice of means to attain general prosperity.

The taking of the Bastille, which was duly honoured by festivity by our French co-residents on Saturday, is one of the unexceptionable occasions which can leave no sting behind; for whatever differences may run with whatever heat in the veins of French electors, it is quite certain that there is no party that would restore the lettre de cachet committing men tried but unwanted citizens to those forbidding walls. No event could have been chosen that would be a more fitting symbol of the gain to human liberty that came by the upsetting of the ancien regime. And yet the storming of the gaunt prison was not much more than a symbol. The defence was half-hearted; the inmates were few—four is the number often given—and it was not the profane that chiefly suffered from the Bastille. It is commonly supposed that it was really a bastion of the old family system of the aristocracy.

cracy, and most often used for a temporary discipline of wayward sons and daughters who cherished amorous and particularly matrimonial plans that were unwelcome to the head of the family. Some mysterious inmates there were, like the "Man in the Iron Mask," who are explained as scions of great families who set up claims that ignored the bar sinister which the heralds would have allotted to them in a grant of arms. The Battle of the Boyne is in a different class altogether: it is one of those commemorated days the remembrance of which is in itself a political programme and a defiance to those who advocate a different programme. The Fifth of November makes both an analogy and a contrast. Begun in a spirit of animosity and intolerance, it has almost lost its specific connection with the old strife of Catholic and Protestant. Guy Fawkes is not a figure that appeals to the imagination. Only here and there does one meet an old-fashioned person who condemns the fireworks as an insult; and even as a spectacle they are not as popular as once they were.

The Battle of the Boyne was fought in a quarrel which was, as it were, mother's milk to President de Valera; and he is still engaged in the same fight. He appears recently to have enquired whether the English Government would have any objection to his declaring Ireland to be a republic; and if so, what steps they would take to enforce their own view? In other words, he wanted to know whether a formal rebellion would be met with force or not. It seems rather odd that it remained to Mr. J. E. Thomas to enquire whether he had sought the views of the millions of Irishmen working in Great Britain, and whether, if they became aliens and were treated as such he would find work for them at home? It is certainly a question that needs to be answered, for in these days when unemployment is still the biggest drawback to prosperity, there cannot be a doubt that the exclusion of all aliens would be the most popular measure that any Government could propose as witness the Edinburgh riots of last week.

When the Boyne can be celebrated with no more bad blood than the Fifth of November we shall know that the Irish feud is at an end.

UNKNOWN MAN WITH CLUB-FOOT

A man with a club-foot was found lying unconscious by the railway level crossing at Purfleet recently. His identity is not known. He was taken to Tilbury Hospital.

Here There and Everywhere

SELF-PORTRAITS

Few artists can resist the temptation to paint themselves. A hundred European portraits stretching over the last 50 years, and wholly unlike any portraits in the Academy, were on exhibition recently at the Leicester Galleries. Nearly 20 of them were self-portraits.

There was one of Sir William Rothenstein as a boy in knickerbockers in the nineties. There were self-portraits of Mr. Stanley Spencer, Renoir, Marie-Lamencia, Chirico, Derain with his family, and Gauguin in bronze relief.

There were two of Cezanne and two of van Gogh.

PICASSO AS HARLEQUIN

Picasso painted himself dressed as a harlequin, seated at the Lapin Agile in Paris with its proprietor, Pere Fred, and a lady friend.

Fred acquired the picture after it was painted in 1908. In 1907 it was sold for a few hundred francs. By 1908 its value had risen prodigiously. Now it is the property of Monsieur de Mare, manager of the Swedish Ballet. His principal dancer, Boerlin, appeared in the exhibition, painted by Carl Hofer.

BRITAIN'S ROYAL GUEST

WARRIOR SON OF KING IBN SAUD

REPUTATION AS BRAVE MAN AND FIGHTER

(By Captain H. C. Armstrong)

THE visit of the Crown Prince of Saudi Arabia was exceptional and is not likely to be repeated. King Ibn Saud is both an absolute and a personal ruler. All things in his kingdom are under his hand.

Once I begged him to visit England himself. "I cannot," he said, "I must always be here to rule." His heir, too, must be ready by his side to take over the reins of government at any minute. No deputy can act for him.

To-day all Arabia is at peace. The tribes are quiet. A traveller, provided he has the King's protection, may journey in safety from the Red Sea to the Persian Gulf and away north to the Syrian Desert. A merchant with goods on his camels may halt unarmed and yet safe beside the most desolate road.

Royal Claimants

A mighty, man, ruthless yet just, dominating the whole land, Ibn Saud holds down a fierce and untamed people by the prestige and personality of a great fighter. But the day, the very minute, the news goes out that King Ibn Saud is no more, Arabia will flare up in revolt.

Half a dozen members of the Royal family will try for the throne. Both the King and his father have married many wives and begotten many children. Ibn Saud has at least 25 sons alive and a great host of brothers and cousins.

Arabia is a harsh land with little soil and less water, so that every yard must be cultivated with the sweat of the brow, and then it produces little. For the Arabs raiding is life, their one spur to energy.

It is in their nature and it sets their blood afire like fever—the secret massing of men and animals, a night march under the open sky and the rolling movement of the camels, a creeping between sand dunes, an eager, fierce, concentrated watching, and then shouts, hoarse cries, the galloping of horses, firing, clouds of dust, some loot, a man or two killed and a few injured.

Keeping Order

The King has for many years forbidden all raiding. He has wished to construct an organised State, and in this raid he has no place. He enforces his orders remorselessly. Once a clan of the Murra tribe disobeyed. At once Ibn Saud swooped down on them, wiped them out, and left as a warning that all could see a black smear of bodies and broken tents under the open sky.

It is Ibn Saud's personality which keeps law and order. The minute he is gone, with a whoop of joy the tribes will go raiding again as they did in the old days. In Arabia there is no machinery of government and no civil service. The King lives and works in the open under the eyes of his people, who watch him narrowly, and they will accept no untried master.

Quarrelsome and proud, no two Arabs will agree who shall give orders until one has shown himself the better man. No tribe will submit to another unless forced. The son of a leader will get his chance to claim his father's place, but he must prove his worth or go.

What manner of man is Emir Saud? Can he take his father's place? He is now 33, an Arab.

Infantry he was attached to the R.N. air units in East Africa and Iraq, becoming a pilot in 1916 and squadron leader in 1928.

Banished for 10 years in last September, Kwot Cheng, an unemployed, was this morning sentenced to six months' hard labour by Mr. Q. A. A. MacLennan at the Central Police Court for being found in the Colony after having been banished for five years as recently as July 2.

London. of the Inner Desert, born in the great palace at Riad. Except for one visit to Cairo several years ago, he has never been out of Arabia, and he comes to England direct from Riad, the capital of Arabia.

The city lies in the very heart of that vast country. It is hidden and protected behind great deserts and is inhabited by the Wahabis, the fiercest and the most fanatical of the sects of Islam, who hate all foreigners and all foreign ways. Riad is a forbidden city, to which only a few European travellers have penetrated.

The Emir's Life

All his life the Emir has lived amongst the Wahabis. Like them he lives very frugally, neither drinking stimulants nor smoking tobacco. He is strictly religious, praying five times in each 24 hours at the appointed times.

Keeping the Fast of Ramadan, for one month each year, he neither eats nor drinks from the hour when the stars begin to pale in the light of the false dawn until the evening call to prayer. He performs the Pilgrimage to Mecca and gives liberally to the poor.

Like his father, who is a giant, he towers a foot over other Arabs, and yet he is slim and lithe, powerfully built, with long expressive hands, and in his Arab robes he walks with a majestic carriage and the poise of one who is used to being obeyed.

He is shrewd, knows his own mind and judges quickly. Often he is unreasonably generous, with a gesture that catches the imagination of those round him, but usually his generosity has behind it a reasoned calculation.

He is an athlete, delighting in shooting, hawking and horses. Every week he rides out of Riad with a cavalcade of 50 or 60 stallions, and in the open plains takes part in mimic battles with charges and spear-throwing and jousting. These physical attributes are of primary importance to the ruler of a primitive people.

Tried In Battle

Already he has a reputation as a brave man and a fighter. He has taken part in a dozen skirmishes and small wars and helped to put down two rebellions, not as the King's son carefully kept out of danger, but in hand-to-hand fighting with the enemy.

When he was only a lad of 19 his father went to war with the Shammar tribes, allies of the Turks. The Emir rode in command of a detachment of horsemen.

Since then he has been repeatedly in the midst of small fights, leading and urging on his men and using his sword lustily. He has made long marches across the deserts under the terrific heat of the summer's sun, with only a raider's rations of some dried camel's milk and a handful of dates, and so proved his power of endurance—a point on which the Arabs count much when judging a man.

CHANNEL BUOYS

WHAT would modern navigation do without the channel buoys—those floating markers that keep ships off the shoals? In a very real sense, the advertisements in this paper are channel buoys, placed for your protection—for the safeguarding of the family expenditures.

These advertisements are the signed statements of reputable firms who seek your patronage on the single basis of giving value for every dollar spent. They are honest statements, the only kind an advertiser can use and remain an advertiser.

People who get the most for their dollar in the market-places are those who keep an eye on the channel buoys. Day by day, they follow the advertisements to learn what and where to buy to the best advantage. Make this a habit. Study the advertisements, in the interest of shrewder buying.

The advertisers in this paper have charted the channels of buying for you. Keep to the course.

AQUARIUM IN LONDON ZOO

IMPORTANT CENTRE OF RESEARCH

FISH WHICH CHANGE COLOUR UNDER SUNLIGHT

(By Craven Hill, F.Z.S.)

London. One of the most interesting parts of the Zoo aquarium is the long service corridor which runs behind the tanks. The primary purpose of this wide, elevated passage is to enable keepers to clean out the show tanks and feed the exhibits; but it has another function, and by no means an unimportant one, for it is also used as a laboratory.

Along the outer walls are small reserve tanks in which, from time to time, research work is carried out and scientific experiments made, not only upon fish, but on sponges, marine plants, the changes in the constitution of the water used in the aquarium, and so on.

The experiments, initiated by the aquarium director, Mr. E. G. Boulenger, are usually supervised by him and by Overseer Vinall, of the aquarium staff, and most of them are made with the object of improving the health of captive fish.

Fungus Malady
To keep aquatic exhibits in good condition is a much more difficult task than to maintain the health of captive animals or birds.

In the first place, fish, generally speaking, are far more delicate than mammals, and if the conditions of their existence—the density of their water and its aeration—are not absolutely right their chances of survival are poor. And they are far more liable to fall victims to disease than are mammals or birds.

It is in the prevention and cure of these diseases that many experiments have been made, and some of them have been a conspicuous success.

Take, for instance, that malady known as fungus, which so readily afflicts captive freshwater fish, and which shows itself as a greyish film upon the scales, and finally spreads to the gills, causing death. Until quite recently this bacterial disease had been one of the most serious which the Zoo has had to combat, and it was with the definite aim of finding a cure for it that a succession of experiments was undertaken in the aquarium laboratory.

Negative results, however, were obtained until one day it was found that, by simply transferring a sufferer to sea-water for a period not longer than 60 seconds the disease was definitely checked. In this experiment salt appeared to play an important part, and further and even more successful tests were therefore made with this substance.

It was found, for instance, that if the disease had not obtained too strong a hold on a victim it could be cleared up by adding one table-spoonful of salt to one gallon of freshwater, and allowing the afflicted fish to swim therein.

Permanently Cured
But perhaps the most striking results were obtained by the gradual warming of the water containing the fish to about 75 degrees, whereupon the fungus literally fell off the scales of the victim, who was then permanently cured.

Another complaint—much more rapid in its effects—which afflicts freshwater specimens is that known popularly as "white spot disease." In this malady a soft, come-out in spots almost overnight. The spots apparently cause the most intense irritation, for upon manifesting them the sufferer scratches himself so vigorously against rocks or wood that in a few hours he succumbs to sheer exhaustion.

Like fungus, this disease at first baffled the aquarium experts, but made the most determined effort to effect a cure.

In the end persistence won the day. While spot disease, it was discovered, can be cured by applying a two per cent solution of copper sulphate (five drops to one gallon of water). At the end of the first treatment the sufferer is somewhat restored to his normal condition, but the disease is not completely cured until the second treatment is given. This valuable discovery was made in the aquarium laboratory, and it was the result of the research work carried out in the long service corridor.

SCHOOL SOCCER

The Sunday Herald International Cup competition was a great success, China winning the final against Portugal 2-0. The net gate receipts amounted to $5,415.99, which has been distributed amongst deserving charitable institutions in the Colony.

Appeal For Clean Play

Whilst on the subject of competitions, I must say a few words regarding the large number of cases coming before the Emergency Committee. When I had the honour of addressing you last year, I made a very earnest appeal to players and spectators alike for clean play, and I warned players that the Association would not hesitate to use all the powers it possessed to maintain the true spirit of the game in this Colony. I regret to see from the report that, in spite of that appeal, there have been all too many cases of misconduct with which the Emergency Committee has had to deal. It is a very serious reflection on our sporting instincts that two Clubs should have had to be removed from the League competition, and I hope the offending Clubs will see to it that they do not again bring such disgrace upon themselves and upon Hong Kong Football generally.

I make a special appeal in connection with the Governor's Cup matches one of which was marked by most creditable conduct last season. These matches should be specially sacrosanct for not only was the Cup presented by His Majesty's Representative but the matches were instituted for the special purpose of promoting friendly relations between Chinese and non-Chinese football players. That they should be the occasion for displays of unseemly conduct brings the whole of Hong Kong Football into disrepute.

Officials Tributed

Major Manners has carried out his onerous duties as Chairman of the Council in his usual efficient way and our thanks are due to him for conducting the business of the Association so successfully.

Mr. Manning L. Bailton who so kindly volunteered to take over the duties of Hon. Secretary, when we were left without one, has proved to be a very hard-working and conscientious official; we appreciate the services he has rendered and trust he will remain with us for a long time.

Objection Raised

Mr. B. M. Omar raised an objection to the wording of the phrase "for fighting" in connection with regard to the suspension of the Young Indians Football Club, as contained in the Report. The speaker understood that the Club were suspended for not fulfilling their fixtures. After consultation with the Hon. Secretary, the Chairman admitted that this was so and the words "for fighting" were deleted. Mr. M. K. Lo seconded the report which was carried unanimously.

New Rules Adopted

The new rules of the Association as presented by the Council, were adopted unanimously.

The following officials were elected for the ensuing year. His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Sir Thomas Southern, was re-elected President (with acclamation). Commander T. A. Hume, R.N., Mr. M. K. Lo and Mr. J. A. Mitchell, were re-elected Vice-Presidents, while Major C. M. Manners, O.B.E. and Mr. C. Gillingham were elected chairman and representative for Junior Clubs respectively.

colour and lose his appetite, and when the shell has been cast he is fair game for any voracious companion who may happen to be sharing his tank. There is hungry brown can then worry him until clearly to cause death.

To enable the owner of a new tank to avoid these dangers, the month's maintenance of the reserve tank should be carried out a few days before the new tank is introduced. At the end of the first month the sufferer is somewhat restored to his normal condition, but the disease is not completely cured until the second treatment is given. This valuable discovery was made in the aquarium laboratory, and it was the result of the research work carried out in the long service corridor.

FUEL MOTOR TRUCK EXPLODES

Many Buildings Set On Fire At Rodez

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL
Paris, To-day.
An accident of an unusual nature occurred on Sunday evening at Rodez, where four buildings were completely burnt down when a motor truck carrying a load of 10,000 litres of motor fuel struck a house and exploded, flooding everything within 50 metres radius with burning gasoline, which set fire to various houses.
The driver of the truck, who was buried under the debris of one of the destroyed buildings, was killed, and it is feared that a child of six who is missing was likewise a victim of the accident—Trans-Ocean Service.

The main features were a prosperity loan of $250,000,000 for productive public works during the next two years; the formation of a National Development Board to survey industrial, agricultural and financial resources, and to plan economic progress; financial assistance for the development of overseas markets; a Cabinet to consist of a Prime Minister and four or five Ministers without departmental duties; the Bank of England to be placed under the control of a board representing the financial, industrial and commercial interests of the nation.

Mr. Lloyd George advocated the abolition of quotas after expiration of the Ottawa agreements, but urged tariff protection for British agriculture with effective measures to prevent dumping, whether from abroad or from the Dominions. He emphasised the immense possibilities inside the Empire and in partly developed countries like India and the colonies, also the unlimited room for expansion of international trade in Russia and China.

POSSIBILITIES IN CHINA
The magnitude of undeveloped possibilities in China and the importance of the diplomatic and financial policy that we pursue in the Far East were stressed. The memorandum said that owing to lack of equipment there was a deplorable deficiency in transport facilities for Chinese workers and the output of wealth per capita was under one-thirtieth of that of Canadian or American

AIR TRAVELLING FOR M.P.'S

London, To-day.
A scheme for the inclusion of air travel within the present arrangements, by which Members of Parliament visiting their constituencies on public business receive free travelling facilities, was announced in the House of Commons yesterday.
Where suitable arrangements can be made members desiring to go by air will be supplied with the necessary warrants to enable them on payment of the excess over first-class railway fare, to use approved airlines.—British Wireless Service.

Before the Fifth National Congress of the Kuomintang is to be convened in Nanking on November 12, the sixth plenary session of the Kuomintang Central Executive Committee will be held in September to discuss preliminary work. To manoeuvre for the best position, the Kuomintang S.W. Executive Committee seeks the return of Mr. Hsiao Fu-chien. At the same time, a member of the Committee will shortly proceed to Shanghai to sound the views of Shanghai leaders with a view to enlisting their support for the South-west.

The political scramble for points of vantage will be in full swing by the end of this month, if not sooner.

workers.
There were many grounds apart from commercial advantage, and it would be a disaster if the Western Powers failed to co-operate in the process of helping China to establish herself and left her alone to the tender mercies of Japanese exploitation.

For future world harmony it was vital that Great Britain, the United States and Russia should agree to a policy as strong as that of Japan, and to join that country in aiding China to get on her feet. Mr. Lloyd George urged that we should advance credits to China on a generous scale and devote more serious attention to Far Eastern diplomatic problems and transfer our representative to Nanking, where he would have the best influence on the course of events.

FLOOD RELIEF IN KWANGTUNG

How Best To Expend $100,000 Voted

Canton, To-day.
Following the endorsement by the Provincial Government of the proposal submitted by Chairman Lin Yuen-kai for appropriation of $100,000 for undertaking of relief work in the flooded districts along the North and the West Rivers, representatives of the Civil and Reconstruction Departments held a meeting on Saturday last for discussion of plans of relief.
It is learned that the $100,000 is to be used for construction of roads, deepening of rivers, reparation of embankments, construction of mounds, and afforestation. While the Provincial Conservancy Board is instructed to carry out the work on deepening of rivers, reparation of embankments, and building of mounds, the Reconstruction Department is hastily preparing plans for building of roads and afforestation.

It is expected that many poor people in the inundated areas will be given employment when the projects are put in hand.—Central Press.

FAMOUS SCIENTIST DEAD

Invented Life-Saving Antiseptic

Professor Julius Berend Cohen, who invented an antiseptic which has saved many lives, has died at Coniston, Lancashire, aged 76. He was professor of Organic Chemistry at Leeds University from 1904 to 1924. Professor Cohen studied the effect of smoke on towns and served as a member of the Local Government Board Committee on smoke abatement. He was also an associate member of the Chemical Warfare Committee.
